When Sally Dobbins (above) decided to craft a set of miniature, wooden row houses for a friend, she did not give the task very much thought. She simply did it. After encouragement from her daughter, however, Dobbins decided to introduce her handiwork at area art shows. Ranging from an inch to several feet in height, the flat wooden buildings can be used as address boards, welcome signs, checker boards or even fireplace screens. Placed together, the row houses give the appearance of a tiny village. ANP photos by Werner Slocum/staff photographer

All in a row

Miniature wooden houses are hit at art shows

By FLORENCE MEEKS
ANP Staff Writer

Sally Dobbins has become quite adept at constructing miniature villages complete with flower shops, bakeries and sporting good stores.

All of the buildings are made from wood, some of which are only one inch tall. The largest buildings reach approximately two feet.

Dobbins has been crafting the row houses for approximately two years. The process is simple, she said.

The wooden store fronts begin as planks of wood, one inch by four, six, eight or twelve inches.

After designing a basic pattern, Dobbins cuts out shapes with a band saw, smooths the surface with sandpaper and creates the illusion of buildings, lamp posts and trees with acrylic paint.

Her first creation was a gift for a friend, but Dobbins' daughter quickly suggested she try selling them at local art shows.

The first show was not encouraging, Dobbins said. By the end of the day she was giving the houses away.

"I thought, 'This is stupid. I don't want to do it anymore.'"

Dobbins' decision to brave a second show paid off. She sold every row house she brought.

Uses for the wooden buildings include address boards, welcome signs, backgammon/checker boards or basic knick knacks. The larger houses can be hinged together to form fireplace screens. Nearly all of the rows display four buildings. Displayed together, they seem to form a tiny community.

Depending on size, the row houses sell for $5 to $150. Dobbins

Man is charged in bank robbery

By FLORENCE MEEKS
ANP Staff Writer

Charged with armed bank robbery, a 46-year-old Wayne resident may face up to 25 years in prison for the robbery of $8,000 from a Romulus credit union.

James Joseph Knoff Jr. was arraigned before United States Magistrate Virginia Morgan Feb. 9. Morgan ordered temporary detention at Wayne County jail for the defendant.

Feb. 12, the ruling was changed to permanent detention with no bond until all court proceedings are completed.

Officials from the Federal Bureau of Investigation have taken over the case and will continue to move forward with Knoff's prosecution, according to reports.

Knoff was arrested by Inkster police officers Feb. 8 at the Bungalow Motel at Michigan Avenue approximately one hour after the credit union robbery was reported. A revolver and $8,000 were discovered in Knoff's yellow Chevrolet Chevette.

Employees of Co-Op Services Credit Union told police officers a white man in his late 20s approached a teller at approximately 11:40 a.m. the day of the robbery.

The man allegedly removed a nickel-plated revolver from underneath his shirt and demanded money from the teller. The teller complied, handing over $8,000, according to police reports.

The man then left, driving away in a yellow Chevette, according to witness reports.

After credit union employees contacted the police, a rough description of the suspect and the car he drove was broadcast to area law enforcement agencies.

When Inkster police officers discovered the Chevette, it was parked at the Bungalow lot.

Knoff was sitting inside the car.

Police officers said Knoff does have a criminal history.

The federal charge of armed bank robbery carries a maximum sentence of 25 years in prison and $200,000 in fines, according to FBI officials.

Carrying a gun during the robbery is considered a separate federal offense with a minimum prison term of five years without parole.

Romulus police officials said this case marks the first robbery of a financial institution in the community since the department formed in 1981.

Chemical odor haunts local neighborhood

By FLORENCE MEEKS
ANP Staff Writer

One group of Romulus residents look to the spring thaw with dread, not with eager anticipation.

These people live near Detroit Metropolitan Wayne County Airport. Fenced in on a plot of airport property at Middlebelt, Goddard and Northline roads are several holding ponds believed to be the source of a sweet, "sickly" stench that permeates the area.

Since 1976 residents have complained the smell invades their neighborhoods, sometimes making walks or drives unbearable.

Romulus City Councilmember Fred "Junior" Block reminded council of the problem several weeks ago, asking the mayor to approach county and state officials for help.

A former member of an airport environmental task force, Block said the stench is caused by a chemical agent used to remove ice from airplanes - Ethylene Glycol.

After use, he said, the chemical is dumped in the holding ponds where it sits, stagnates and eventually begins to smell.

"It gets so sickening it's terrible," Block said, adding the smell has been known to spread as far as Goddard Road and Telegraph on a warm day.

During Block's remarks to council, Mayor Beverly McAnally agreed a problem exists, adding she does not want people to remember Romulus for a bad smell.

Block said the smell is the most noticeable problem presented by the holding ponds, but they are also creating an environmental threat. The water, which has a black, sluggish appearance, has been released into local creeks and sewage systems, he said.

Karen Dillon was also a member of the environmental task force. She said her involvement in the issue began in 1976 when she wrote a letter to representatives of the Michigan Department of Natural Resources. Over the years, the Harrison Road resident said, solutions to the problem have been slow in coming.

"While I do not ever not want them to stop that procedure (de-ice airplanes), there must be something they can do about the smell," she said.

Airport officials have described several possible measures to ease the problem.

One option would be adding a second chemical to the holding ponds that would minimize the Ethylene Glycol effect. Other possibilities are to use ponds further away from the road or to build a water treatment facility for the airport. The latter project could take years to design, fund and construct.

Dillon acknowledged the practice of releasing pond water into nearby Frank Poet drain has decreased sharply after pressure from the resident task force.

The chemical in the water is similar to the antifreeze used for automobiles, Dillon said. The odor attracts animals, but the substance is poisonous to them. Residents have had to keep a sharp eye on pets to

2 local robberies may be connected

Two gas station robberies reported one week apart may be related, Romulus police officials said.

The most recent case was reported at 7 p.m. Feb. 13 from a gas station at the 9000 block of Wayne Road.

Police described the incident as a "strong arm" robbery. The suspect threatened violence, but did not reveal a gun.

A station employee told police a man approximately 6 feet tall weighing roughly 270 pounds entered the business, waited until all customers had left and verbally threatened the clerk, demanding cash.

The clerk handed over the money from the cash register, and after additional threats the clerk handed over his car keys, police said.

Police later located the 1980 Ford parked at a local apartment complex.

The suspect in this case is described as a white male, 30 years old, 6 feet tall, 270 pounds with medium-length reddish brown hair and a mustache.

Also under investigation is a similar robbery reported Feb. 7 from a gas station on the 35000 block of Goddard Road.

Again, the suspect waited until the station was empty before approaching the clerk. He reportedly demanded cash from the register and keys to the clerk's 1989 Chevrolet Cavalier.

Unlike the recent case, however, the suspect threatened the clerk with a handgun.

Police officials describe the suspect as a white male, 6 feet tall, 250 to 280 pounds with long, greasy brown hair.

Anyone with information about either of the above cases is urged to contact the Romulus Police Department at 941-8400.

ROMULUS NEWS DIGEST

Special holiday is declared

March 2 will officially be Mary Ann Banks Day, Romulus City Councilmembers decided last week.

Banks was recently selected as the Romulus Person of the Year by the chamber of commerce. Chamber members have scheduled an awards banquet March 2 in honor of the former mayor pro tem.

The Banks holiday was proposed by current Mayor Pro Tem Randolph Gear.

Student count shows increase

The unofficial fourth Friday count for Romulus Community Schools reveals a slight increase in students from December 1989 to January 1990.

For January, the total count reached 4,723, up seven from the previous month.

The increase was found in the high school age group. Elementary-age students decreased by two, but middle school students increased by two, school officials said.

District to sell aging vehicles

Twelve school district vehicles ranging from regular school buses to pickup trucks are now on the market.

Members of the Romulus board of education agreed to request bids for the vehicles, based on a recommendation from the district finance committee. Some of the vehicles date back to 1978, and all of them have high mileage, according to Joel Carr, assistant superintendent for finance and operations.

City board has new member

Romulus school board trustee Pat Patterson has been appointed to serve on the city Tax Increment Finance Authority.

TIFA projects usually involve improvements to make way for a development. The work is funded by bonds, and tax revenue from new developments on the site are used to refund the investment. A current TIFA project is Wick Road improvements, which are expected to ease the way for the Metro World Centre development.

Chamber awards ceremony nears

The Greater Romulus Chamber of Commerce continues to accept reservations for the 10th Annual Romulus Person of the Year Awards Dinner Dance.

This year Mary Ann Banks will be honored. The former mayor pro tem learned of the award in December.

Chamber members scheduled the award ceremony for 6:30 p.m. March 2 at the Hilton Inn. Dinner will begin at 7:30 p.m. The cost is $30 per person.

Reservations including payment must be received at the chamber office located at 31200 Industrial Expressway by Feb. 23. For more information call 326-4290.

Openings remain in quilting class

Openings remain for a weekly quilting class offered by the Romulus recreation department.

The class is offered every Thursday evening at a cost of $1 per session. Participants meet at the recreation center on Bibbins Street.

For more information call 942-6852.

Teen health group meets

Several meetings have been scheduled by the Romulus Adolescent Health Center Council — 2:30 p.m. today, March 8 and March 22.

Sweetheart

Nicole Bock (above), 7, was proud to display her winning valentine from a recent Romulus Public Library contest. Approximately 50 children designed, crafted and submitted valentines to decorate the building last week. Contestants used colored construction paper, lace, crayons and magic markers for their creations. Each of these homemade hearts was then entered in a drawing. Bock, a student from Irving Elementary School in Woodhaven, learned of her prize Feb. 13. ANP photo by Werner Slocum/staff photographer

Teacher contract woes are unsettled

By FLORENCE MEEKS
ANP Staff Writer

Frustration has been expressed from both sides of the table recently, as attempts to negotiate a contract for Romulus school teachers remain unsuccessful.

Romulus teachers have been without a contract approximately three years. During the beginning of the 1989/90 school year, teachers carried black balloons to illustrate their concern as they marched in front of the district administration building. A similar march had been staged the previous spring.

More recently, teachers used black T-shirts to illustrate their point. Worn on Martin Luther King Jr. Day, the shirts read "Romulus Teachers Deserve a Contract."

"We felt it was our form of nonviolent protest," said Chris Powers, teachers' union president.

Powers added the schools closed early that day because of the holiday.

Early that morning, district administrators instructed the teachers to remove the shirts. Those who did not would be reprimanded, the administrators said.

Powers said a small group of teachers refused — seven from Barth Elementary School, three from Romulus Junior High School and all the teachers who wore the T-shirts at Cory Elementary School. Each of these teachers received reprimands.

Teachers wore the shirts again at a Feb. 12 board of education meeting, but they have stopped wearing them in the classroom, district officials said.

Now, Powers said, teachers are waiting for administrators to make a move. They hope to hear of a new negotiating session, she added.

"We're still waiting."

"We have left the door open for additional meetings," said Dr. Terrel LeCesne, assistant superintendent. "We're always willing to sit down with the union."

Despite this willingness to meet, LeCesne said the negotiating situation is basically the same as it was last fall.

"Nothing has changed," he said.

Earlier this year, the district offered teachers a seven percent pay increase. Teachers rejected it.

The district simply cannot afford more, administrators have said in the past.

Area business people tour Romulus hotels

By FLORENCE MEEKS
ANP Staff Writer

It was a sacrifice — area business people forced themselves to sample prime rib and chocolate mousse pie last week in order to familiarize themselves with Romulus hotels.

The progressive dinner was sponsored by the Southern Wayne County Chamber of Commerce. Participants were business people who often recommend good area hotels as part of their job.

Stops included Court Yard hotel by Marriott, Detroit Airport Marriott Hotel and the Fairfield Inn by Marriott.

Ed Clemente, chamber administrative assistant, organized the tour as a sequel to a similar summer event. He said he does not want business people to overlook the Romulus community.

"Romulus is considered Downriver. People shouldn't think it's too far away," he said.

Among those who need to be well-versed on the local hotel scene, he said, are realtors, corporate representatives, attorneys and even funeral directors.

Participants in the event included representatives from Great Lakes Steel, National Bank of Detroit, Michigan Bell and the Heritage Corporation. Also present were Bill Crane and Dennis Worsley of the Greater Romulus Chamber of Commerce.

The group totalled 55 to 60 people, Clemente said.

"If they expand this airport we'll have double the planes, double the trouble," he said.

Block said county officials have commissioned engineering studies and have placed aeration systems in the shallow ponds. Nevertheless, the problem persists, he said.

"If they (airport officials) can build a new building there, they can come up with some kind of solution for the health and welfare of the people who live here," he said.

Loan will cover school expenses

Romulus Community Schools will borrow $3.4 million to cover upcoming expenses.

The action was recently approved by the Romulus Board of Education.

"We need this loan to cover our cash needs during the late spring and summer," said Assistant Superintendent Joel Carr in a presentation to board members.

Carr said the borrowing is conducted annually to cover cash flow needs. Revenue from spring property taxes is then used to repay the debt.

"I don't know of any district that manages without it (the loan)," remarked Dr. Terrel LeCesne, assistant superintendent.

Past bidders for the loan have been Comerica Bank, National Bank of Detroit, Manufacturers Bank and Security Bank and Trust Co.

Satellite shows OK'd for school

A satellite dish may be installed near some Romulus school buildings this year.

Members of the Romulus board of education recently approved an agreement that will supply local secondary schools with a satellite transmission receiving system, two recording/playback video cassette players and television sets in every classroom at no cost to the district.

Programming is expected to begin in September.

The three-year agreement approved by school board members is with the Educational Network of Whittle Communications which will supply equipment and programming.

Programs include Channel One, a daily news show for students; The Classroom Channel, an instructional support channel and The Educator's Channel, for teachers and educators.

byns said selling something she made is more pleasurable than profitable.

"You're definitely not in it for the money. It just keeps you busy," she said.

The process is time consuming. Dobbys has spent up to two weeks on the larger buildings.

When people see them, the first thing they notice are Dobbys' efforts to add tiny details. She calls them "teeny, tiny things."

But Dobbys insists painting birch trees or lamp posts is the easiest part of the process, despite the fact she is without formal art training.

"I just did it," she said.

What is a challenge, she said, is cutting the wood.

"Making all of those straight lines."

Now that her houses seem to have caught on among craft consumers, Dobbys has begun to sell them by special order. She can personalize the buildings by painting the owners' names — Mary's Paint Shop or Bill's Sports.

Dobbys' next appearance will be from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. March 4 at the Craft Gallery art show of Roma's of Garden City, 32550 Cherry Hill.

State minimum wage issue is debated

By FLORENCE MEEKS
ANP Staff Writer

Shortly after proposed federal minimum wage policies touched off debate throughout the country, state policies have become a source of argument.

Lawmakers are considering a bill which would increase the Michigan minimum wage to the new federal standards. Businesses with a yearly income of less than $500,000 would be affected – larger companies fall under federal guidelines.

The new federal standards would increase the minimum wage from the present $3.35 an hour to $3.80 on April 1. The rate would increase to $4.25 the following year.

The standards also call for a lower, training wage to be offered to employees under age 19 during the first 90 days on the job.

Two Republican state senators are campaigning strongly toward state conformity to the federal policies.

Senators R. Robert Geake (Northville) and Fred Dillingham (Fowlerville) said the Blanchard Administration is sending mixed signals on the issue. They have sent letters to Labor Department Director Elizabeth Howe and Commerce Department Director Larry Meyer asking them to resolve their positions.

"It is unclear to me why the administration would not rally behind the federal standards, which were supported by (U.S. Sens.) Levin and (Donald) Riegle, as well as the entire voting Michigan Congressional delegation," said Dillingham, chairman of the Senate Committee on Human Resources and Senior Citizens.

"As national labor standards change, it is important that we act promptly to bring our job providers into the national mainstream," said Geake, vice chairman of the Senate committee. "Failure to conform with national standards can only reinforce Michigan's reputation as a state with an unfriendly business climate."

The minimum wage bill took a new twist Feb. 15, however, when Republican lawmakers added an amendment to strike out the Michigan minimum law. Businesses earning less than $500,000 would not face any kind of pay requirements. Sen. Harmon Cropsey (Decatur), sponsor of the amendment, said he was concerned that the proposed 90-cent increase by 1991 may force small business to close.

On the other end of the spectrum, a group of Democratic lawmakers are reportedly pushing for an increased state standard, $5, by 1993.

Ron DeCook is an aide for State Sen. William Faust. He said the purpose of a minimum wage is to provide workers with enough income to make a living. With the standard too low, working is no longer an option, he said.

"You're pushing people to take welfare or public assistance."

DeCook said he believes a $5 minimum wage would not be a problem in western Wayne County where some fast-food restaurants start workers at $6 an hour. Businesses in the Upper Peninsula may not be able to afford an increase, he added.

"We realize it may hurt other areas in the state," he said.

DeCook said more debate about the minimum wage bill is expected to continue this week. Some lawmakers anticipate the new amendment to be dropped, he said.

Meanwhile, local business people with complaints about the federal minimum wage policy have said they are in no rush to see state conformity.

"Michigan is sending the federal government a message that no one can live in poverty and survive," said William Garrett, owner of Garrett Glass Co. of Wayne.

"I think the minimum wage is pathetic...the federal government has to be brought into the real world," Garrett said, adding he has not offered minimum wages in 30 years of business.

"I don't work to be in poverty, and I don't expect anyone working for me to."

Earning the new federal standard of $3.80 per hour, a full-time employee would earn $152 per week, $608 per month with an annual income of $7,296.

Veterans group honors the patriotism of local youth

By FLORENCE MEEKS
ANP Staff Writer

For explaining why they are proud of their country, three Romulus high school students recently won savings bonds.

The students were participants in the 43rd Annual Voice of Democracy Scriptwriting contest sponsored by the Romulus Post of the Veterans of Foreign Wars and the Ladies' Auxiliary.

Winners are: Bryan Wojtylko, a senior taking first place and a $200 savings bond; Jennifer McClure, a sophomore winning second place and a $100 savings bond and sophomore Heather Choate who won third place and a $50 bond.

The contest was open to all 10th-, 11th- and 12th-graders at Romulus high school. This year, the contest theme was "Why I am Proud of American."

"I mentioned being free...all the beautiful things we have," Wojtylko said, summarizing his two-page essay.

McClure said she broke down the word "America," finding a topic for each letter and elaborating.

"Like how the veterans stood up for us," she explained.

Choate's essay touched on several themes.

"The wars that veterans of foreign wars have went through," she said, "and I talked about how we help other countries."

For most of the students, the essay marked their first experience with writing competitions. They heard about the contest from English department chairman George Bowersox.

"It sounded interesting so I decided to give it a shot," McClure said.

Choate said, "I'm a good writer, and I thought I could do it."

Wojtylko said he spent approximately two weeks writing and perfecting his essay, submitting the final product on tape. Active with the student newspaper, the senior said he hopes to pursue a career in writing.

Themes for the VFW contest are selected yearly by representatives from the national organization. All local posts are then informed. They in turn contact area high school representatives who publicize and judge the event.

Earl Corpe and his wife Pat contacted Romulus high school and supplied a video tape of the winner from last year reciting his winning script.

The $350 in savings bonds were donated by the Romulus VFW post.

Quality education may be constitutional right

By JOHN AGGE
ANP Staff Writer

The Michigan Senate and the House of Representatives have introduced a joint resolution proposing an amendment to the state Constitution to provide an efficient and equitable educational system for public school pupils, it was recently announced.

If approved, the amendment could be submitted to the general public for approval at the next general election in the state.

The proposal amends section two of article VIII of the Constitution which concerns public education. The article now provides for free public elementary and secondary education without discrimination, a prohibition of public monies for private or denominational education and provides for the transportation of students to and from any school.

The amendment would mandate the legislature provide by law an efficient system of public elementary and secondary schools that ensures pupils an equitable opportunity for a thorough education.

Gary Jackson, superintendent of the Huron school district, said that while the wording of the amendment is rather broad, it is better than nothing.

"We need something in the constitution that speaks of equal educational opportunities," Jackson said. "It only says that the state will provide free education now."

Jackson, and his school district, is part of a lawsuit filed in September 1989 by 117 school districts in the state claiming educational funding in the state is not constitutional. Eleven other districts have since joined the lawsuit, bringing the total to 128.

"I know we'll win," Jackson said. "But this (amendment) sure wouldn't hurt us."

The amendment and the lawsuit, if won by the school districts, would eliminate unequal funding based on property tax levies, Jackson said.

"Some districts levy six mills and generate $8,000 per student. Other districts levy 40 mills and come up with $3,500 per student. That is not fair," Jackson said.

The proposed amendment to the state Constitution was authored by Rep. Ken Profit of Ypsilanti.

Disposal facility markets recycling

Waste Management Inc. has been a leader in the community in the area of recycling and solid-waste disposal.

Although their initial business was landfills, officials of Waste Management learned quickly about the need for a clean, safe method of disposing of items.

The company formed Recycle America last year to meet the demands for recycling facilities, according to Bill Dolson, site manager at Woodland Meadows in Wayne.

"We have voluntary recycling here," Dolson said. "Now people can recycle if they want to, but pretty soon they will have to. There is no other way to go."

Newspaper, corrugated cardboard, bottles, plastic, tin, metals and appliances are all accepted for recycling at Woodland Meadows.

The goods are then shipped off to different facilities, such as Taylor Recycling, where they are cleaned and converted into usable raw materials.

"We sell the items to companies who will use them," Dolson said.

DuPont is expected to sign an agreement for all plastic materials at Woodland Meadows soon, according to Dolson.

"Finding the company to buy the goods is sometimes the most difficult part," he said.

Money collected from the sale of the materials is distributed to area charities - a different one each month.

"Last period we gave the money to Girl Scouts Council," Dolson said. "Then we had the kids come here for a session to learn about landfills and recycling."

Educated youngsters and a more concerned adult population is making it possible, Dolson said, to keep the recycling bins filled.

"It was really slow at first, but now we see about 50 cars on a Saturday - our busiest day," he said. "The winter weather has kept a lot of people away."

Waste Management has become involved in another recycling effort. Ford Motor Company is purchasing the methane gas which is developed in the landfill.

Dolson said there will always be business for landfills, because not everything can be recycled. He also said that if the amount of solid waste coming into the landfill each day does not decrease considerably, they will soon run out of room.

Woodland Meadows has an estimated life span of one year, but officials are seeking a variance so they can expand upward. An additional property owned by the company will allow another 30 years of landfill space.

Woodland Meadows landfill has an expected life span of year. Officials of parent company Waste Management Inc., however, are promoting recycling as a means for making landfills last longer. ANP photo by Werner Socum/staff photographer

Tax time causes anxiety

By PATRICIA BROWN
ANP Staff Writer

It's that time of year again. For some people, tax season and the sight of a W-2 form, is a joyous occasion. While for others, it can be as bad as getting an overdue bill in the mail.

Tax season is to a tax preparer, what Christmas is to a retailer.

"It's our busiest time of the year," said Patricia Reilly, of H & R Block in Westland.

"It usually starts the first week in February. We see the biggest volume of clients during that month," she said.

Reilly said most people want to file as soon as they get their W-2 forms because most people expect a refund.

"They've had more withheld, so they're looking forward to a nice little check," said Reilly.

On the other hand, Reilly said those who anticipate owing the government wait until the last minute to file.

"It doesn't always happen that they owe money, but many think that they do," said Reilly.

"April is our second busiest month in the year," said Reilly. "Between February and April 15, March is the slowest period."

During the month of February, Reilly said approximately 100 forms are prepared at her office each day. When March arrives, Reilly said approximately 50 tax forms are filed per day.

There are many different tax forms that apply to filers.

"There are tax forms for every walk of life," said Reilly.

"The most commonly filed form is married filing jointly," said Reilly.

When married people file separately it's usually during a non-negotiable separation.

"We do the best we can to get them to negotiate, but because of the headaches of having to deal with a spouse they are separated from, they'd just assume pay the extra taxes," said Reilly.

Most people are searching for ways to save money on their taxes. Standard deductions and exemptions are the most common money savers.

Exemptions are taken for every individual who is dependent on your income. Each individual is worth $2,000.

The government allows everyone to take a standard deduction. Married couples can deduct $5,200, while a single filer can deduct $3,000.

To file as head-of-household, a filer can rent or own their home. Reilly said a filer must be the "provider of the home" to their children or to their parents.

Next year filers with children will have to have a social security card for each child before they can file income taxes.

Property tax proposal meets with opposition

The property tax reform beat goes on.

In wake of the recent announcement by former Oakland County prosecutor L. Brooks Patterson and economist Patrick Anderson for property tax cuts and revisions in the state school aid formula come reaction against the "Patterson-Anderson" proposal.

Also, Gov. James Blanchard last week jumped on the bandwagon with his "Assessment Freeze Program", which would tie property assessment hikes with the rate of inflation. The governor supported the ill-fated Proposal A that voters rejected in November. The proposal would have increased the state sales tax and the resulting increase would be funneled to schools.

In January, Patterson announced his group would launch a petition drive to seek a constitutional amendment which would roll back and permanently cap school operating taxes to no more than 30 mills. The proposal, which needs voter approval, would also limit the property tax increases on existing property, caused by assessment growth, to the rate of inflation.

Furthermore, the proposals would ask that the ceiling on the percentage of personal income the state can take from the people in taxes be reduced.

The Patterson-Anderson proposals come closely on the heels of two resounding defeats offered by the state lawmakers last November - Proposal A and Proposal B, which would cut property taxes in exchange for increases in the state sales tax. Voters turned down the proposals by a 2-1 margin.

According to a press release, Taxpayers United claims that the Patterson-Anderson Proposal "would be a tax shift/increase. It would not be a tax cut as claimed."

"The Patterson-Anderson Proposal to amend the 1987 Headlee Tax Limitation to the Michigan Constitution through a petition campaign is opposed by the Taxpayers United for four good reasons," stated Michael C. Sessa, a director of Taxpayers United and one of the authors of the Headlee Amendment.

Sessa outlined the following reasons why his group opposed the Patterson-Anderson Proposal. They include:

- The main objective of the Patterson-Anderson Proposal is to try to insert a school aid formula into the Constitution, and to take that duty away from the local control and state legislature;

- The Patterson-Anderson Proposal would do nothing to roll back illegal 1990 property tax assessments plaguing homeowners which are based on the legislatively-condoned State Equalized Valuation (SEV);

- Taxpayers do not need another ballot proposal like last year Proposal B which purported to control property taxes through a limitation on millage rates. The Headlee Amendment already does that. Blanchard's Assessment Freeze Program, according to Robert A. Bowman, state treasurer, "would solve the problem of high assessment for school tax purposes by limiting every homeowner's annual assessment increase to no more than the rate of inflation."

Bowman further states that all school districts would be reimbursed by the state for revenues that it lost due to the limitation.

In the meantime, most property owners in the area have received substantial assessment increases. According to figures provided by the Wayne County Assessor's Office, most residential property tax assessments will be going up about 7.3 percent.

TEACH CHILDREN GOOD DENTAL HYGIENE

By Arthur Hamparian, D.D.S.

February is National Children's Dental Health Month, and it's a good time to take a look at the growth and development of your children's teeth. Here are some guidelines that will help in your assessment.

INFANT CARE

Try to prevent thumb and finger sucking, pacifier use, or prolonged breast feeding. These habits may cause bite abnormalities.

Keep your infant's gums clean by using a piece of gauze or a clean washcloth and gently wipe the gums after feeding.

Avoid putting your child to sleep with a bottle of sweetened liquid. It may cause tooth decay. This also is true of sugar-laden medications. Ask your pharmacist for sugar-free medications.

If a child's primary tooth has not fallen out, and a permanent tooth is erupting, check with your dentist immediately. Prompt removal of the first tooth can prevent a crossbite or other orthodontic problems.

If tooth crowding is present, an early orthodontic consultation is advisable. There are certain procedures that may limit, or possibly help avoid, extensive orthodontic treatment.

TOOTH GROWTH

Growth of primary and permanent teeth vary with the individual child. There is no real timetable.

Frequent dental care, at least semi-annually, can help you keep abreast of your child's tooth growth and development and help intercept the development of bite abnormalities.

Correct brushing habits are vital. Make sure your child brushes in the morning, after meals, at bedtime, and after sweets.

An early initial examination is suggested to ensure that your child's teeth are growing and developing normally, and to check for any possible tooth decay.

Give children an early positive dental experience. They will thank you in later years.

Recycle today, save your environment

Citizens of the world are coming up against a brick wall, and the only way to deal with the situation is to eliminate the values of a throwaway society.

Soon, there will be nowhere else for our garbage to go. The landfills will be full, and there will be no land for new ones. Incineration solves part of the problem, but it is expensive and can be even more harmful to the environment.

The most logical approach to dealing with the problem is to cut back on the disposable products we use every day. This will mean a major lifestyle change for most of us.

Paper towels should be set aside for cloth towels, paper napkins should make way for cloth. Disposable diapers should be shunned, and cloth diapers used instead.

Consumers should avoid products in the grocery store which are over-packaged. Most frozen dinners are packaged in several layers of plastic, creating more trash to be disposed of. Fruits and vegetables should be loaded into the grocery cart without plastic bags, or cloth, reusable pouches should be brought from home. In fact, why not bring a cloth bag to the store to load groceries into rather than using the plastic – or even paper – bags provided at the checkout line?

Why throw a broken radio in the trash? There are many charities and organizations whose members restore old equipment, and then sell them. If you want to turn a profit for yourself, save the seemingly worthless gadget and have a garage sale. Your trash could very well be a treasure for someone else.

While we are cutting back on the items that we throw away every day, we might as well take advantage of recycling.

Recycling will be our ultimate salvation from this critical situation. It is the cleanest, most efficient of any form of solid-waste disposal. Nonetheless it is the least used, and the least understood.

Well, we better all understand because our community leaders are going to be forced to implement mandatory recycling programs in our communities.

Glass, plastics, paper, cardboard, tires, motor oil, batteries and many other things can be recycled. Even the McDonald's hamburger cartons are now being converted into playground equipment and park benches.

These items can be recycled and made just like new using even less energy than was needed to make the original product. Therefore, recycling helps solve the solid waste crisis while at the same time conserving energy and eliminating the need to destroy natural resources.

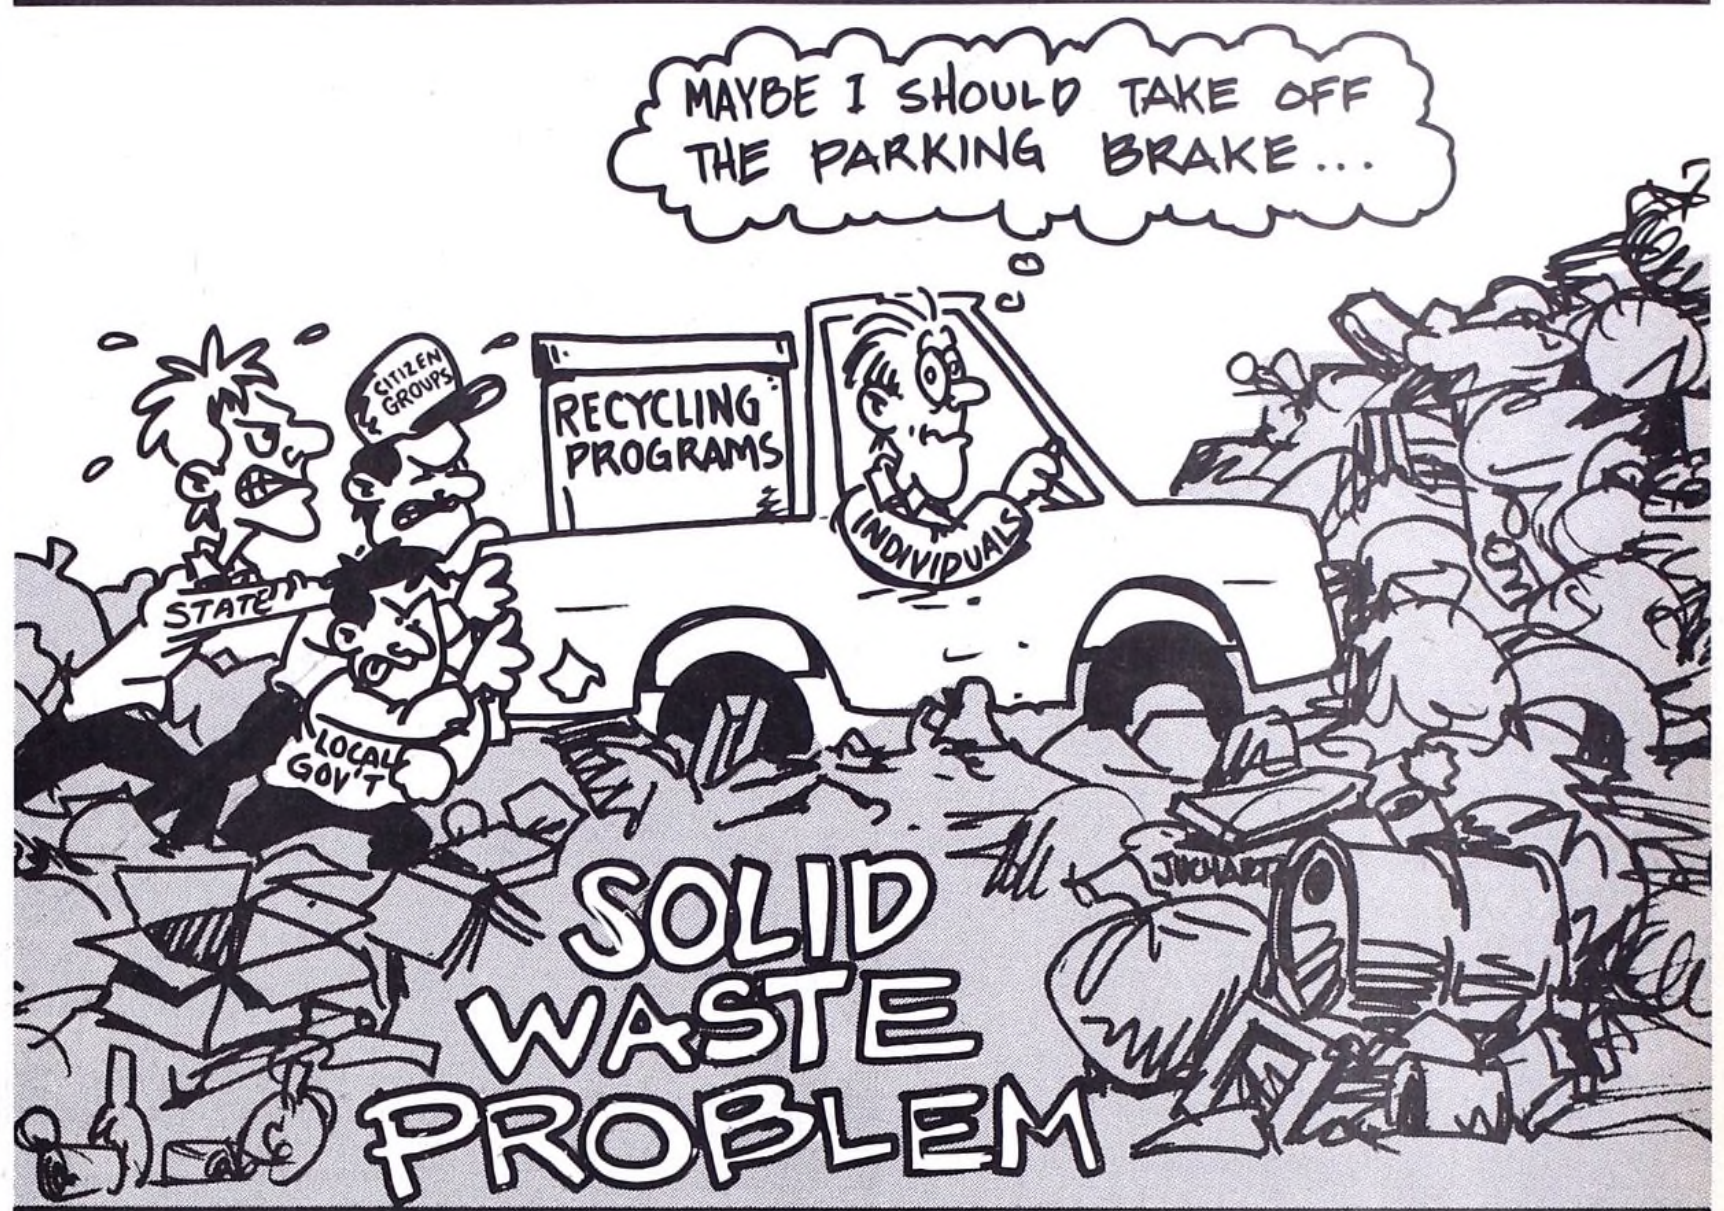

For now, items to be recycled must be cleaned, sorted and taken to a facility where they are collected. Many cities and townships have established dropoff sites for recyclable products.

In the not-too-distant future, however, the items will be picked up at the curb each week.

While all of this may seem to be an inconvenience, we must all remember that if we don't take some serious action now we will wake up someday to an unsafe environment, with landfills as far as the eye can see.

Businesses and community leaders have taken the first steps by meeting and discussing the problem. Some have even implemented recycling projects on their own. The general public has announced their support of recycling, and yet it seems not many feel called into action.

It is time now for all of us to take the problem seriously, and put into action plans for our own households and businesses. It is time to recycle.

Political outlook scary

Isn't it amazing and a whole lot of scary how power-play politicians who retain office over long periods (by what I call default because they run unopposed) seem to lose all good common horse sense?

Today I received a "Recreational Survey" in the mail. It's long, it's pretty, and it has a lot of "wet the appetite" questions, but them comes the hammer – additional millage.

My present tax bill shows an eight-percent increase in SEV, there is sure to be another eight-to 10-percent (conservative) increase on the next one due to an increased evaluation and some clown (paid by tax dollars, no doubt) comes up with yet another stupid reason to ask for more.

Boy, oh boy, they sure may have no good common horse sense, but give 'em credit taxpayers – they do have guts.

Failure to witness

Obviously, the "failed march" writer was not in Washington on Jan. 22 (as I was) to witness first-hand the awe-inspiring view of Constitution Avenue solid with pro-lifers from the Lincoln Memorial to the top of Capitol Hill. The "report" she referred to was by no means as reliable as the on-site estimates that day ranging from 150,000 to 200,000 (exceeded only by our Washington for Jesus rally, April 1988 of over 500,000, which, incidentally, received no media coverage). Washington police reported that by helicopter they counted 1,500 buses from all over the U.S. Official counts showed 23,000 people from Arkansas, over 20,000 from Oklahoma, over 20,000 from California – need I go on? Please, don't take your cues from what the secular media reports. More coverage was afforded the few pro-death advocates which attempted to infiltrate our ranks than to the total masses of pro-lifers.

And, the anti-choice label is a game of semantics. Shouldn't pro-abortionists be better labeled pro-death? Pro-choice is inaccurate to say the least. That tiniest of human beings has no choice against the abortionist's instruments. He or she is not a part of the mother's body, simply because it is joined by the umbilical cord. That child has a separate fingerprints, separate heartbeat, a different blood type, and a separate and distinct body parts – all functioning independently of the woman's body. Because the child relies on her for its food does not give her the choice to kill. She has a choice to keep her child or to permit the baby to be raised by parents who, for any number of good reasons, cannot biologically produce a child of their own.

If anyone has any doubt as to the authenticity of post-abortion syndrome for women who have had legal abortions, I urge you to contact WEBA, Open Arms or Catholic Social Services. Even AC has support groups dealing with the psychological effects of abortion. These women have been there. (Are they part of the 23 million women have decided this to be their best alternative?)

Cable cost beats utilities

In the last eight years, our basic cable rate was more or less to say $8 per month, and now our basic cable rate is $20.85 with a $2 increase it would be nearly $23 a month just for basic cable, not including any movie channels.

That is practically the total of which we are paying for the electric bill. Where in the world is our newly elected mayor or council not to intervene on behalf of the senior citizens on this monstrous robbery.

Not only the senior citizenship but what about the young people who are just getting started in today's society?

So come on you Westland residents, wake up and start complaining to the Westland officials, what have you all got to lose?

Acceptance is wrong

I am a parent who has children in the Van Buren Public Schools. I am very angry that parents seem to accept the reduced five-hour school day, as well as the elimination of art, music, physical education and computer programs at the elementary level.

Our children are being cheated out of the education they deserve and I am mad about that. Our high school's sports and extra-curricular activities have been disrupted and some excellent teachers have been laid off. The frustrating part is that most parents don't seem to mind. Where are our values? Our state legislature doesn't seem to have the will to do anything at this time. Therefore, it is up to us as parents to do something. Complaining isn't enough. Neither are excuses. It is one of our rights, and our responsibility, to take action. One of our responsibilities – and one of our fundamental freedoms, is the right to vote. Most people (86 percent) did not even vote in the last millage elections. Unfortunately, the 1,900 or so "no" voters (out of 18,000 registered voters) has made the decision that affects the majority of us. Although it is their right to vote "no" – and at least they exercised their right – it still makes me mad that those people have decided the fate and future of our children.

People need to stop complaining to one another. They must go to the people that represent them – the school board. Tell our school board how you feel and what you think they should do to get us back on track. School board meetings are open to the public. Don't just complain – offer to help get our schools back to where they should be. We must remember that our children are our future – both for this community and our country. We need to give them all the advantages we can possibly give them – and hope they, in turn, will do the same when they have children of their own.

Recycle Wayne County!

Communities band together to establish solid-waste plans

Community leaders throughout the Conference of Western Wayne and Wayne County officials have been working to compile a workable plan that will steadily reduce the amount of solid waste being dumped into landfills.

The solid waste management plan discussed by community leaders is in response to dwindling landfill space, and the danger of our own refuse causing major damage to the environment in which we live.

Leaders have called for a plan which calls first and foremost for a reduction of solid waste. Next, emphasis should be placed on reusing items rather than disposing of them after just one use. The next step is to educate the public on the necessity of recycling. The next steps are composting, turning waste into energy, incineration and finally — and only as a last resort — landfill.

An important aspect of the entire plan is education. Individuals must be made aware of the fragile state of the environment, and learn how to move toward becoming a recycling household, according to officials.

Individuals throw away many items which can be reused, if not by yourself, then by someone else. Discarded appliances, clocks, etc. could be passed along to a charitable organization, sold in a garage sale or fixed up and reused.

We can cut back on the disposable items we use such as disposable diapers, paper towels, and much more in an effort to lessen the problem.

Recycling those items we cannot do without is the cleanest, safest way of solving the problems of solid-waste disposal. Glass, paper, plastics, and many other items can be broken down and reused in their current state or as something else.

The problem is not going away, and residents will be called upon to make sacrifices to help save the environment.

Community leaders have been forming special study groups to set policies in the area of solid-waste disposal.

The Wayne Recycling Committee has met several times, and members are now discussing plans to implement curb-side pickup of newspapers to be recycled. The curb-side pickup will be put in place during one week to determine the interest of residents.

Canton Township officials are also working on plans to set up recycling bins at township hall where residents can dump their recyclable goods. They are also discussing a curriculum for the schools concerning recycling, and a future system of curb-side recycling pickup.

Once a county solid waste plan is adopted, local communities will be required to implement plans for reducing solid waste.

Area businesses add muscle to the recycling movement

Business is responding in a big way to the increased concerns of solid-waste disposal, and saving the environment.

McDonald's restaurants, long criticized for their use of styrofoam food containers, have even found an afterlife for the environmental "pink elephants." The containers, which are not bio-degradable, are being converted into park benches and playground equipment, according to placemats now used throughout the fast-food chain.

That is not, however, where the role of business ends.

The Goodyear Tire Company, which is facing a great deal of pressure from the department of natural resources and other environmental groups, is investigating methods for improving their standards in the disposal of automobile parts and fluids.

"If we don't recycle and protect the environment, we won't have an environment. We can't just go to another planet when we've destroyed this one," said Ken Belinger, general manager

"If we don't recycle and protect the environment, we won't have an environment. We can't just go to another planet when we've destroyed this one."

— Ken Belinger
March Tire
general manager of the five area March Tire Company stores.

Goodyear executives are requiring local outlets to do away with underground storage tanks, and drains, and to examine methods for recycling discarded tires.

Belinger said it will be an expensive endeavor, and one that consumers must be prepared to pay for.

"Customers are going to see environmental charges on their bills someday, without a doubt," he said. "They should be prepared."

Plastipak Packaging, Inc., with offices in Plymouth and a facility in Westland, are also jumping on the recycling bandwagon. The firm has agreed to purchase recycled plastics as the raw material for their milk cartons and containers.

Meijer Thrifty Acres, with two new stores opening soon in the area and a store in Canton Township, has also been in the forefront of the environmental issue.

They were among the first retail outlets to stress the importance of recycling bottles and cans which were turned in for deposits. Now they have introduced a line of environmentally safe disposable diapers.

Although some environmental experts believe it is still best to avoid all disposable products, Meijer officials have taken a stand by investing in such products.

As the concerns about solid waste continue to be discussed, it is expected that more and more businesses will gather behind these efforts.

Earth Day is celebrated

Citizens of the world will be asked this year to recognize Earth Day 1990 — a global demonstration of citizen concern for the protection of the Earth.

This will be the 20th anniversary of the original Earth Day celebration which made history as the largest demonstration ever. Ten thousand schools, 2,000 colleges and universities and virtually every community in the United States participated. More than 20 million people were involved.

The first demonstration helped prompt development of the Clean Air Act and the Clean Water Act. It called for the creation of the Environmental Protection Agency.

On April 22, 1990, the earth's residents will once again be called upon to fight for the protection of the earth. Issues of acid rain, ozone holes, rain forest destruction and solid waste reduction will all be at hand.

Cities will be called upon to become part of the Global Cities Project or to simply plan their own programs as part of Earth Day.

Enduring Litter

Litter at the roadside is ugly. How long it will stay before decaying may be an ugly surprise.

One Family's Trash

Over the course of four weeks, Newsday collected and analyzed 12 bags of garbage from the six-member Sigmann family of Holbrook. The garbage added up to 166 pounds, the equivalent of an average-sized man. Here is what the Sigmans threw out:

Recycling facts are a surprise

As we move forward into the 1990s, Americans are going to be asked to be more environmentally aware. The following are some facts about litter and recycling.

- Collecting and disposing of wastes in America cost $4.5 billion each year, the third largest tax burden on local communities after roads and highways.
- The degradation of litter when exposed to the elements is as follows: a piece of paper takes 2 to 4 weeks; an aluminum can takes 200 to 500 years; and it is unknown how long it takes a glass jar to disintegrate.
- The office of Litter Prevention and Recycling reports that from 1981 to 1985 the 18 recycling centers it funded received more than 1.9 million pounds of aluminum cans, 4.8 million pounds of glass, 10 million pounds of newspaper and 9.6 million pounds of cardboard for recycling.
- A typical American will generate enough garbage in his or her lifetime to equal at least 600 times his or her weight. It is approximately 60 percent if that waste is recyclable.
- Annually, the U.S. produces enough solid waste to completely fill five million large truck trailers - a fleet that would stretch twice around the world if placed end to end.
- Making new aluminum cans from used cans takes 95 percent less energy than producing aluminum from scratch.
- The energy saved by recycling one aluminum can is enough to keep a 100-watt bulb burning for approximately three-and-one-half hours.
- In 1984, Americans recycled a record 32.4 billion aluminum beverage cans. This resulted in a savings of more than 9.3 billion kilowatt hours of electricity - enough to supply the electricity needs for 100,000 homes for a full year.
- All used glass containers can be recycled. And new glass containers can be made of 100 percent used glass.
- It takes less energy to melt down used glass than it takes to fuse sand, soda, ash and limestone into new glass.
- Studies show that recycling plastic bottles into new products saves from 50 to 60 percent of the energy that would be required to make the same product from virgin material.
- Products that can be made of recycled plastic soft-drink bottles include fiberfill for coats, sleeping bags, pillows, bath tubs, shower stalls, insulation and sailboats.
- Paper made from waste papers instead of virgin wood requires 64 percent less energy and 61 percent less water. It also results in 70 percent fewer air pollutants.
- Saving newspapers means less trash to bury, burn or clutter our neighborhoods. Recycling one ton of newsprint will save 100 cubic feet of landfill space.
- Each week the average household receives 20 to 30 pounds of newspapers which can be recycled into new products. In 1984, only 30 percent of these newspapers were recycled.
- It takes 42 gallons of high quality crude oil to produce 2 1/2 quarts of motor oil. It takes only one gallon of waste oil to produce the same amount.
- Used motor oil never wears out. Contaminants can be removed through the refining process, and the oil can be used again.
- Recycling scrap metal consumes 75 percent less energy than making new materials.
- Increasing steel recycling 50 percent would save the energy equivalent of seven nuclear power plants.
- Americans discard 240 million tires each year - an average of one tire per American per year. Of these, only 13 percent of all auto and 31 percent of all truck tires discarded are re-treaded.

Recognize America's Living Landmarks

From the towering 275-foot Giant Sequoia in California's Sequoia National Park to the relatively diminutive 20-foot Allegheny Plum in Virginia's Blue Ridge Mountains, America's living landmarks are an invaluable part of our nation's natural heritage.

That's why the American Forestry Association began The National Register of Big Trees in 1940. Today, as then, we encourage citizens across the country to find and recognize the largest tree of each species. With your help and participation, we can locate and protect these champions for future generations while fostering a deeper appreciation for trees and forests everywhere.

*America's Living Landmarks.
Their preservation is every American's concern.*

Waste Management: The World Leader in Curbside Recycling.

Throughout North America, our Recycle America® programs are turning yesterday's waste into valuable recycled resources. More than 1,300,000 families voluntarily cooperate in our curbside recycling program for old newspapers, aluminum and steel cans, glass, and plastics. And the numbers are growing daily.

Putting resources back to work.

Recycle America processing centers are handling high volumes of recyclable materials and speeding them off to markets identified by our trained recycling specialists. This systematic approach eases landfill burdens and disposal costs.

Waste Management in your neighborhood.

Active in the Detroit metropolitan area, the Mideast Region will be providing curbside recycling services to 50,000 homes this summer. The company additionally provides six Detroit area municipalities with recycling dropoff opportunities.

All recyclables are processed through our Detroit Material Recovery Facility and then shipped to Waste Management established end markets such as Waste Management's joint ventures with the DuPont Corporation and the Jefferson-Smurfit Corporation. Both joint ventures provide stability and predictability to the recycled paper and plastic end markets, and further guarantee Waste Management's successful recycling operations.

6 local matmen qualify for state

Led by regional champ Belleville High, the area produced six Class A state qualifiers, four of whom will be defending their regional titles.

Belleville wrestlers harvested two gold medals, a silver, and will be represented at the state meet with four grapplers.

Class A state competitions, for individual qualifiers, will be staged Feb. 23-24 at the Kellogg Arena in Battle Creek. A wrestler must have finished among the top four places in his respective regional to qualify for the state championships.

There is also a state team championship, scheduled for March 2-3 at Kellogg Arena.

The champs are: Steven Davis (119), Mike Braswell (171) of Belleville; and Bruce Boyd (135) and Brian Farnan (152) of Romulus High.

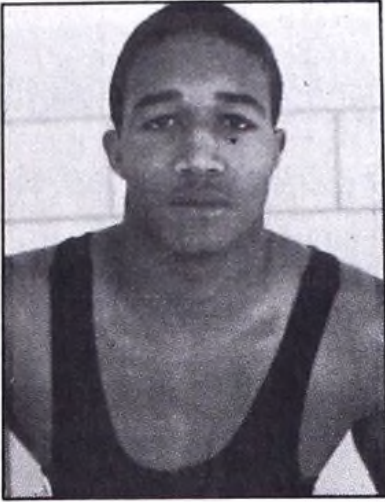

Also qualifying for the finals are Jeff Komaromi (189) and Chris Williams (140) - both of Belleville High.

Belleville High also qualified to compete in the team phase of the state title after beating South Lyon for a regional championship. (See Related Story) at Romulus High, Norm Butler, said they were "extremely pleased" with the performances of their wrestlers.

"I felt our kids did an excellent job against some of the toughest competition in the state," Malecek said. "To get this far reflects upon their dedication and hard work. It is a job well done."

Butler also lauded his wrestlers.

"We have had some hard luck in the stretch," Butler said, "however, our regional champs proved that hard work does pay off. I am very pleased with them, and we're looking forward to the state championships."

Davis, a sophomore, proved he will be a power to contend with when he surfaced from the mats at Plymouth-Salem on Saturday with a gold medal in the 119-pound class. To be awarded the honor, the Belleville grappler faced a seasoned performer in Fred Schumacker of Temperance Bedford.

Davis managed to wrestle the regional crown away from his opponent thanks to a 9-2 decision.

League-leading Highland Park, Inkster clash

By TOM MOORADIAN
ANP Staff Writer

There will be a cage showdown in the old town Friday night when league-leading Highland Park, confident from a victory over the Vikings of Inkster, invades Inkster High.

A standing-room-only crowd is expected to be on hand for the rematch that could decide whether the Parkers will be the next Suburban Athletic Conference champ, or if the league leader will have to share the title with Coach George Thompson Jr. and the Vikings.

Highland Park will bring to the Viking gym a 9-1 SAC record. They beat Inkster the first time around, and are 11-6 overall on the year. Inkster can match the Polar Bears overall record, but the Vikings are 8-2 in the league after they were forced to hand over a victory to Oak Park because of their use of an ineligible player.

The first encounter between Inkster and Highland Park was accentuated with controversy. There was a disparity in free throw shooting: Highland Park had the edge, getting 35, while Inkster went to the line four times. That disparity was the key to the outcome of the game, according to Thompson.

"And I am just hoping that history doesn't happen again," Thompson said. "I hope nobody misunderstands what I am saying - Highland Park is a good team, however, they went to the line for 35 free throws; we had four. It's tough winning close games when that happens."

Inkster had an unscheduled night off Friday. Because of the ice and sleet, Willow Run cancelled the game. The two SAC rivals have rescheduled for March 1 at Willow Run.

The anticipated shootout against River Rouge last Tuesday ended in an Inkster victory. The Vikings, thanks to the efforts of Jermaine Jackson and Michael Herrington, also managed to slow down high-scoring Rouge sharpshooter Gerrod Abram.

Abram, who has been scoring 40 to 50 points this season, settled for 23 against the Vikings. Nine of Abram's points sparked an 18-10 Rouge lead in the first period. He was shutout, however, by Herrington in the final eight minutes of the game.

After trailing by eight in the early stages, the Vikings outscored their hosts 24-20 in the second period, thanks to six points each from Jackson and Claude McReynolds, and the board control provided by Marcus Kewley. Tyron Orr did an excellent job dish-ing out the passes.

Trailing by four at halftime (38-34), the Vikings finally broke loose and edged their way into the lead with a 28-23 third period. Ahead 62-61 entering the final eight minutes, Inkster assured itself of its eighth conference victory by shutting off Abram and outscoring the Panthers 28-16.

"The key to beating Rouge is stopping Abram," Thompson said. "And how can you say you really stopped him when he got 23 points. That's a good night's work for anyone."

Abram cashed in on eight field goals, five of those from long range, for his 23. Teammates Bernard Herrington and Damon Pitts chipped in with 20 and 17 points, respectively.

McReynolds, however, earned the game's individual scoring honors with 29 points.

Belleville wins regional title

By TOM MOORADIAN
ANP Staff Writer

Belleville has its first Class A regional wrestling championship team.

Coach Gerald Malecek's Tigers destroyed state-ranked South Lyon, 36-26, last week in the finals of the regional competitions conducted in Novi to add the regional title to its growing list of accomplishments for the season. Earlier, Belleville captured the district and Wolverine 'A' Conference titles.

"Anytime you win a title as prestigious as the regional you have to be elated," Malecek said. "This is the first time we have managed to do so and, of course, I am very proud of this team".

Three successive victories - two by falls - in the last three weight classes sealed Belleville's victory over South Lyon in the finals. After Mike Komaromi of Belleville was pinned by Larry Olson in the 160-pound class, the Tigers got down to work.

Mike Braswell claimed a lopsided 14-4 decision over Eric

Romulus tournament rematch

Romulus and Clarenceville spikers to meet again on the court

By TOM MOORADIAN
ANP Staff Writer

When Romulus and Clarenceville recently met on the volleyball court in the semifinal round of the second annual Romulus Roman Invitational, some called the match "the best girls' volleyball match ever played in the Romulus High gym."

Tonight at 5:30, the Eagles of Romulus and the Trojans of Clarenceville will resume their rivalry.

"They're an excellent team," said Romulus Coach Gail Coleman, commenting on the pending encounter. "Obviously, we would like to even the score with them. And I believe the fans won't come away disappointed. We're two evenly-matched teams."

The nonconference match is an excellent tuneup for both teams which will be playing for district championships next week.

Romulus will host a Class A district on March 3.

In the meantime, the Eagles lost a chance to move into a two-way tie for first place with Ann Arbor Huron in the South Central Conference last week when they dropped a 3-1 decision to the River Rats. Huron has all but sewed up the SCC championship. The Ann Arbor spikers have an unblemished 6-0 record and Romulus, with two losses, is next with a 5-2 record.

After Romulus won a close 15-12 first-game from the SCC leader, Huron came right back and swept the next three 15-8, 15-10, and 15-10 to pick up the key match.

"We had 20 bad serves in this series," Coleman noted, "it's obvious if you don't have the serve, you can't score points, and if you can't score points, you aren't going to win."

Romulus did return from Woodhaven on Saturday with a second-place trophy. The Eagles lost to Monroe Jefferson in the finals

District pairings set

Here are the pairings for the Class A girls' volleyball district championships to be staged at Romulus High School:

Class A
(Romulus High)

Saturday, March 3
3:00 p.m. Westland John Glenn (A) vs. Wayne Memorial (B)
4:30 p.m. Romulus vs. Winner of A-B match
4:30 p.m. Belleville vs. Garden City
6:30 p.m. Championship

(15-12 and 15-7). The taller Monroe team - with a front line of 6-1, 6-2, and 6-1, managed to block a score of Romulus' serves.

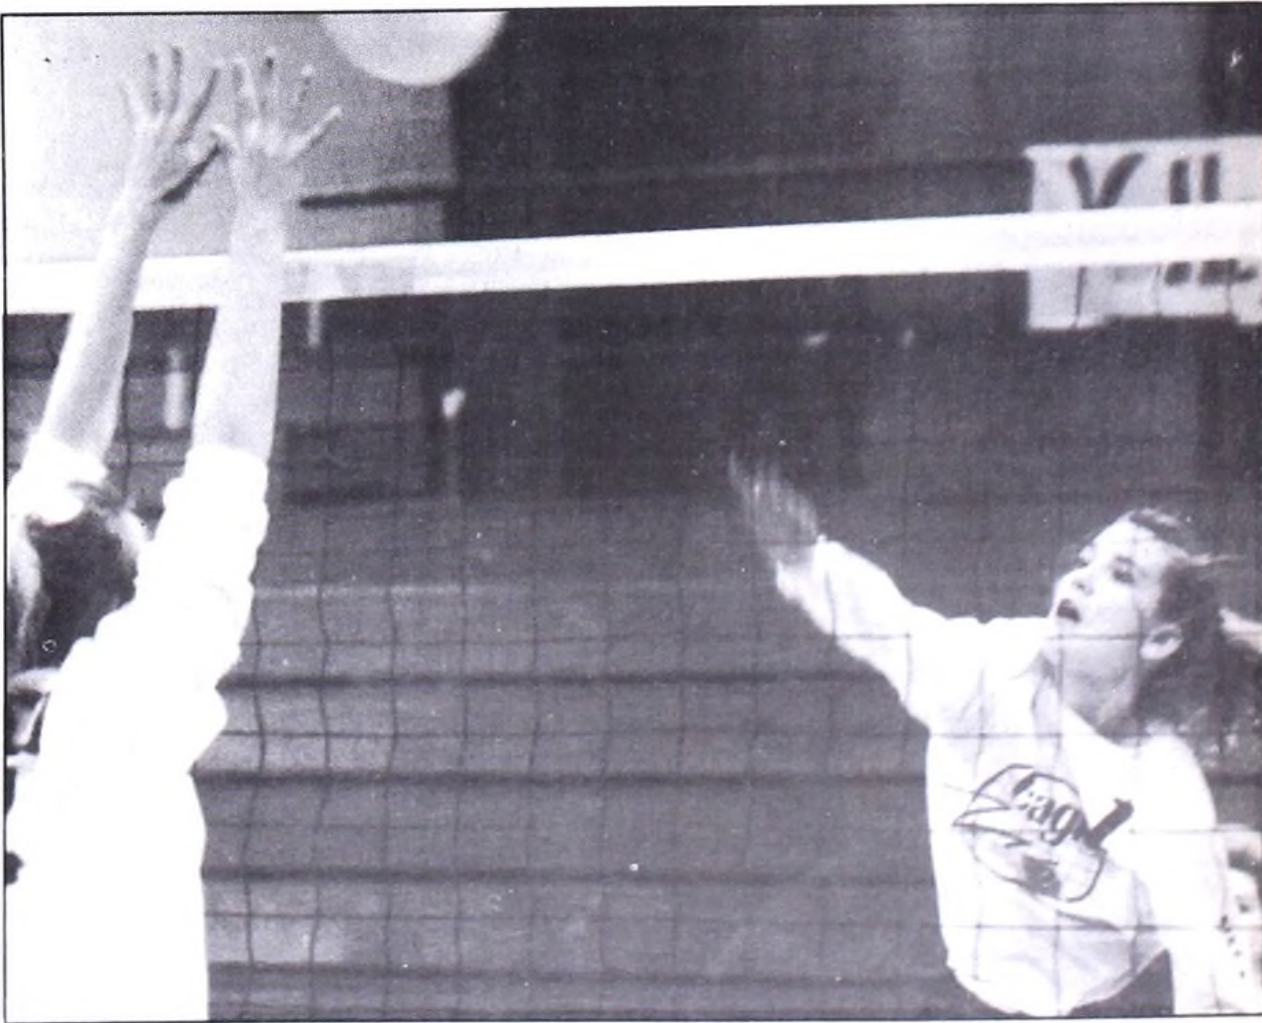

"It was a frustrating match, however, it showed us what experienced height can do on that front line."

Susan Hamel, Romulus's most consistent player in the series, stood out, Coleman said.

To reach the finals, Romulus turned back Taylor Kennedy, 15-13, 15-12; Woodhaven 15-6, 15-4; Riverview 15-7, 15-3; and Allen Park, 15-9, 15-12. They did lose 16-14 and 15-13 to Thurston in an a.m. encounter.

Michele Sgarrow, who had four kills and seven aces, and Tammy Trubilowicz, who had 16 service points, led the Eagles' assault against Huron. Jennifer Daniel accounted for eight kills, five blocks and 17 defensive digs and Christine Stratton came up with seven "kills" while Susan Hamel chipped in six "kills" for the Eagles.

Romulus is also scheduled on Saturday to play in the downriver invitational.

Romulus' Jennifer Daniel (at right) goes up to spike against a defending Clarenceville player in the semifinals of the Romulus Roman Invitational, staged recently. The 3-game match between the two nonconference rivals, won by Clarenceville, was considered "the best ever played at Romulus High." Romulus will get another crack at the Trojans tonight when the two teams meet in a rematch. ANP photo by Werner Slocum/staff photographer

Ouch!

Ailing Eagles fall to Ann Arbor Huron, 76-58

By TOM MOORADIAN
ANP Staff Writer

To paraphrase a once popular TV commercial about beef, Romulus Coach Chris Molloy is probably wondering today: Where's the offense?

Molloy's ailing Eagles scored a meager six points in the first eight minutes of their South Central Conference game with Ann Arbor Huron, didn't do much better the rest of the evening, and took it on its basketball chin, 76-58, from the River Rats.

Are the Eagles down and out?

"We definitely have lost our spark," Molloy said. "We had no offense to speak of out there against them." The first-year Romulus coach put it bluntly: "We were bad."

And that doesn't mean, "good", folks.

With Huron muscle men 6-8 Kareem Carpenter, a 250-pound senior, and 6-6 David Amos, who also checks in at 240-plus, dominating the boards, the River Rats jumped from a 12-6 first period lead to a commanding 36-17 advantage at halftime.

For all purposes, the game could have been called after the initial half. The Eagles poses little threat to the SCC leader, which claimed an insurmountable 61-33 lead after three periods. Carpenter pumped in nine of his game-high 23 points in that pivotal second period, and Amos counted eight of his 14.

The loss dropped the Eagles to 1-6 on the SCC season; they are 8-9 overall.

Two Romulus players managed to break into the double digit scoring column for the losers. Torrey Mills led the Eagles with 16, while Virgil Davis contributed 10.

Romulus managed to collect 20 of its points from the free throw line where it missed out on 10 other opportunities. Huron canned 14 of 23 free throws.

Romulus could return to the .500 mark this week if the Eagles find a way to get past Ypsilanti Lincoln. (The two nonleague rivals were scheduled to play Tuesday night). Romulus has an open date Friday and will return to the court on Feb. 27 when they clash with Taylor Center.

Molloy and the Eagles close out the 1989-90 regular season on Friday, March 2 at Adrian. It is also their final SCC league game. Romulus is the host for a Class A district championships, which will bring together teams from the Taylor public schools and Belleville.

Robichaud finishes 2nd at city meet

By TOM MOORADIAN
ANP Staff Writer

Propelled by five first places, Robichaud's swim team finished second at the 1990 Dearborn Heights Swimming & Diving City Championships conducted Saturday at Annapolis High.

Annapolis, the host, took top honors with a team point total of 403. Coach Jim Hadley's Bulldogs were runners-up (247), followed by Crestwood, with 137.

Robichaud received record-shattering performances from its swimmers.

I felt that the team was excellent. Our problem has been the lack of depth. We only have eight swimmers out for the team this year, therefore, any time we run up against a team that has more numbers, and they usually do, we are at a disadvantage.

The 200-medley relay team, made up of Rob Patrick, Rob Stewart, Tony Lario, and Gerald Petre broke the Bulldog varsity record in winning the event in 1:49.96. Patrick and Petre also established new bests in their splits - Patrick turned in a 37.96 for the 50-yard backstroke, while Petre was clocked in 23.16 for the freestyle.

Patrick came right back and won the 200-yard individual medley in record time. He touched in at 2:16.21. The Robichaud senior broke the varsity backstroke record in winning his second individual event of the day.

Patrick's 1:00.69 erased the 24-year-old former record shared by Marvin Purdy and Ken Konchel.

Robichaud also was represented in the winning circle with Petre, who also was a double winner. He finished first in the 50-yard freestyle in 23.71, and he also was clocked in 53.5 in winning the 100-yard freestyle.

McMillan to stash the 171-pound class in the Tiger win column, then Jeff Komaromi avenged his brother's loss with a 4:55 pin over David Richman and when Belleville heavyweight Jim Howe strolled off the mat with a 4:55 pin of Pat Moll, the Tigers had their inaugural regional crown.

Although they have had individual state wrestling champs, Belleville has never trespassed beyond the regional as a team in state competition. The state has been staging separate individual and team championships since the 1987 season. Before that, state titles were determined by the number of points individuals were awarded at the state tourney. There was no team phase of the finals.

Can this be the 'Year of the Tiger'?

"There's so much to winning a state title," Malecek said. "There's also a bit of luck. I can't say we won't - and I can't say we will, but these kids are going to give it one heck of a try."

This time, however, the 171-pound Braswell went aggressively after his archrival. He emerged with a 10-4 victory over Kuban for the title and his 43rd victory in 45 outings in his senior year.

Komaromi fell one victory short of winning his first regional gold. His nemesis was Brian Burlison of Salem. Burlison was awarded a 7-1 decision over his counterpart for the gold; Komaromi settled for the silver.

Williams survived the regional by reaching the consolation finals where he met and was defeated by Ypsilanti wrestler Assad Nimer, 3-1.

Boyd continued his sterling performance at the regional. The 135-pound Romulus senior clashed with Marcus Manz of Temperance Bedford in the finals and defeated his opponent for his 41st victory in 42 starts this season.

In the meantime, Farnan also struck gold thanks to a 5-2 victory over Mike Dushane of Temperance Bedford. Farnan will take a 36-3 won-lost record to the state finals.

"I felt that the team was excellent," Hadley said. "Our problem has been the lack of depth. We only have eight swimmers out for the team this year, therefore, any time we run up against a team that has more numbers, and they usually do, we are at a disadvantage."

Robichaud will travel to Willow Run on Tuesday to compete in the Suburban Athletic Conference championships. The Bulldogs, twice-beaten by title-favorite and defending champ, Willow Run, will be hard-pressed to upset the champs.

Earlier, the Bulldogs dunked Pontiac Northern, 84-64, as they swept 10 of the 11 first places. The victory evened their overall record to 5-5 on the season.

The meet featured some surprises, including an outstanding effort by Robichaud diver, Francis Curto, who won his event with 147.3 points, despite a 'failed dive' in his last dive.

Brian Muir gave the winners a victory in the 500-yard freestyle, while Jennifer Johnson set two varsity girls' swim records when she finished second to Muir in the 500 freestyle (6:31.3). She was fifth in the 200-yard freestyle (2:40.1), also a record.

Stewart, a junior, established a varsity record - breaking his old mark of 1:07.44 set at the Western Wayne Relays - when he checked in first in the 100-yard breaststroke (1:06.77).

General Motors dealers add 'Quick Lube' services

By JOHN AGGE
ANP Staff Writer

A group of General Motors dealers, as part of a nationwide corporate customer-service campaign will introduce the "Mr. Goodwrench Quick Lube Plus" program for owners of GM cars and trucks by the beginning of April, according to company spokesmen.

The "Mr. Goodwrench Quick Lube Plus" service includes installation of an AC oil filter and GM Goodwrench motor oil, a chassis lube, a check and fill of fluids (transmission, brake, power steering, differential/transfer case and windshield washer), as well as inspections of drive belts, hoses, air filter and tire pressure.

The program guarantees the work will be performed in 29 minutes or less from the time of write-up or the next Quick Lube Plus service is free. No appointments are necessary.

Sid Charnock, general manager of Charnock Olds 24555 Michigan Avenue in Dearborn, said his dealership has not officially signed up for the program, but soon will. The dealership management has already hired a technician to service customers of the program when it kicks off Feb. 12.

"We're not able to advertise the program until we sign the agreement, but we will start it Feb. 12," Charnock said. "We're going to use the Quick Lube technician position as an entry-level training position for a mechanic."

Vern Standley will take care of Charnock Quick Lube customers. He is currently receiving training by GM and is also studying auto mechanics at Macomb Community College.

"This program gives the customers added convenience, competitive pricing and the assurance of having work done by people they know," Charnock said.

The decision by GM officials to offer the program nationwide followed extensive test marketing at nearly 100 GM new vehicle dealerships from April through September 1989. The tests took place in Alabama, Ohio and California. The average price for a GM Quick Lube in those areas was $21.50, just less than the industry national average.

One GM dealer in Southgate has already set up a similar lubrication program for customers.

Bill Rowan, of Bill Rowan Olds at 15800 Eureka in Southgate, said his dealership has offered customers a quick oil change for approximately five months in response to increasing competition in the lube, oil and filter business.

"You can't drive up and down any street without seeing some type of oil change business," Rowan said. "We developed our own program to stay competitive."

Rowan said dealerships have always been able to give customers good service on oil changes, but the paperwork involved and an image of slow service hindered popularity of the service.

"We do a good job servicing our customers quickly," Rowan said. "It's in the customers' and our interest to do the extras like checking the brakes or air filter or noting other problems for the customers. They will then know they need to fix their car and we may have the opportunity to fix it for them."

Rowan said his $19.95 price was very competitive. He said he is unsure if he will join the GM program because he already has his own.

Just Desserts

Sue Willett

Let's just set the record straight, here. Hawaii is definitely paradise. There is a great deal of evidence to indicate that God lives right there on Waikiki Beach. Actually, I think I may have seen his condo down near Diamond Head.

The climate is wonderful, the sunshine never stops, even when it rains, and the air is the texture of velvet. Sinus infections disappear like magic, the common cold is unknown and germs can't live in the atmospheric pressure of paradise. Stress is only present until visitors become acclimated to the environment and the pace of life is relaxed and wonderful. In short, being back here, during this ice storm, isn't very appealing. It appears that all the bad weather and misery I wished on this area waited until my reappearance.

It seems the fates have chosen to discipline me for conduct designed to inspire envy. As I stepped into ankle-deep freezing water attempting to scrape an inch of ice off my car windshield and tried to pry my blue fingers from the handle of my shattered scraper, I realized that perhaps my conduct had been less than admirable. Perhaps I shouldn't have flaunted my vacation. Maybe teasing about Alejandro bringing me those drinks with the little paper umbrellas in them next to the orchids was a bit rude. An apology may be in order.

But, if I get an opportunity of any kind to return to those islands which comprise this state of paradise, don't get in my way while I pack my bathing suit and sunglasses. It was wonderful even though we had less-than-perfect weather. The winds blew at about 55 mph ALL the time we were there. Lying on the beach was impossible due to sand flying in one's eyes and mouth and sticking to any bodily part covered with suntan lotion. The airport was closed due to the high winds and power lines were downed. We couldn't go to the pool, either, as the incessant wind tended to make one just a bit cranky. And, if the truth be known, the little paper umbrellas blew out of all the drinks and the orchids flew off anything on which they were placed.

Here's an example of the way real Hawaiians prepare one of their wonderful desserts and the exact way they give directions when the pace of life is somewhat, er, more relaxed.

Soup warms the stomach and the heart

By FLORENCE MEEKS
ANP Staff Writer

If fresh-baked goods evoke feelings of guilt and decadence, homemade soup must be the opposite, carrying images of warmth and security.

During the slush-filled days of February, soup has a special appeal, and cook Kevin Steel finds his talents with broth and vegetables are in hot demand.

The Inkster resident is part-owner of the Ranch House restaurant in Belleville. He has built a reputation for thick, homemade soups.

"Everybody talks about my soup," he boasted.

Leaning back comfortably in his restaurant kitchen, Steel explained his interest in cooking began in high school. After achieving success in his home economics classes, he decided to enter some local bake-offs and won.

Years later when Steel was laid off from a factory job, he decided to expand his skills in the kitchen. After studying culinary arts at Washtenaw Community College, Steel landed his first job as a cook at Flagg's restaurant in Belleville.

Since 1979, Steel has been a cook at the Ranch House (originally known as the Brass Bell).

In January, 1989, Steel became a part-owner.

Steel said he wants the restaurant to be known for fresh-made foods.

"Everything now is from scratch, the way I did it (when he started)."

A secret to success for Steel - he allows the natural flavor of his dishes to surface.

"You can't over-season your food...I let the people out there put on their own salt," he said.

When he does use seasonings, Steel leans toward natural spices such as oregano, pepper and garlic.

With soups, he said, flavorful vegetables are key. Nearly all of his recipes depend on a base made from onions, carrots and celery.

"That brings your flavor out," he said.

For his cream soups, Steel usually uses a roux, a mixture used to create thickness. Steel provided a recipe below.

Although soups seem to be a favorite with his customers, Steel said he simply enjoys working in the kitchen. Even during his free time, Steel has been known to cook a special meal for his wife and children.

"I enjoy it a lot. It's something I've been doing a long time. No matter what, I will put out a good plate."

Cream of broccoli soup

3 boxes frozen broccoli
2 1/2 quarts chicken stock
2 gallons cream
Butter and flour roux (see recipe below)
1/2 pound American cheese

Boil broccoli in chicken stock until tender. In separate pot or kettle warm two gallons cream. Add warm cream to tender broccoli mixture. Add roux. Simmer 10 minutes. Stir in shredded American cheese. Allow mixture to thicken approximately 10 minutes over medium heat. Serve.

Roux

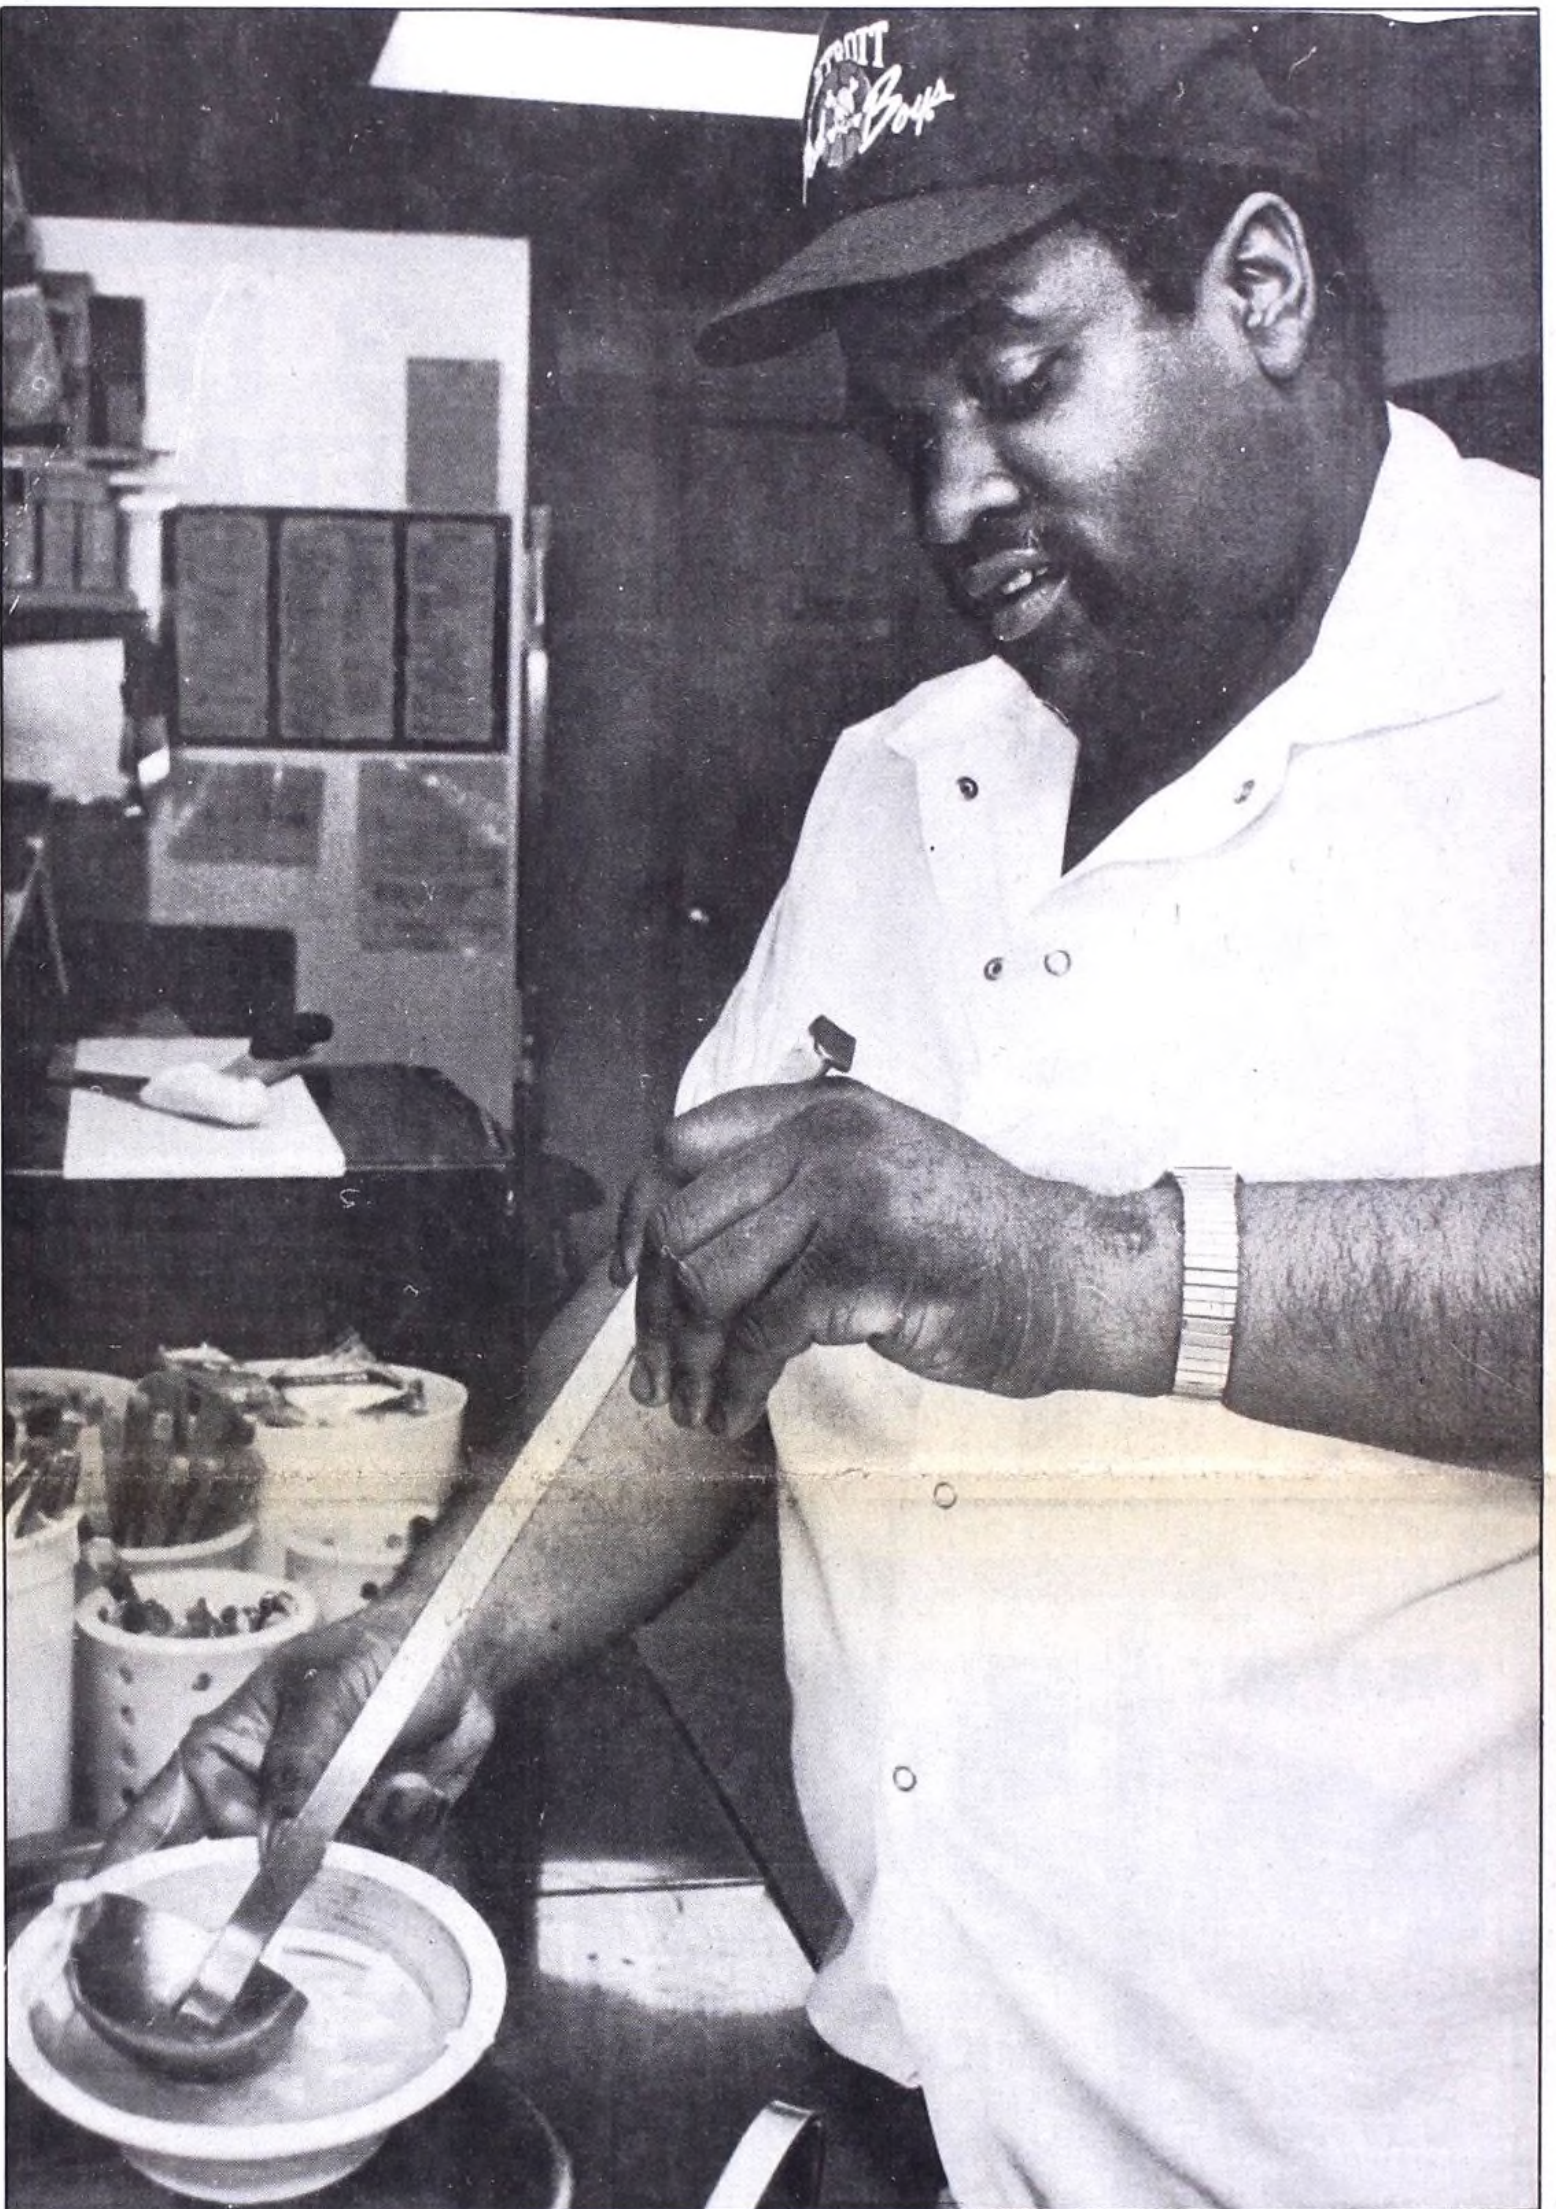

1 pound butter
2 to 2 1/2 cups flour

Melt butter in large saucepan. Gradually stir in flour. Stir over medium heat approximately 10 minutes. Roux should be thick with flour thoroughly incorporated into mixture. Use to thicken soups and sauces.

Cheese soup

1 large onion
3 large carrot sticks
1 bunch of celery
1 1/2 quarts chicken stock
2 gallons cream
2 pounds American cheese
1 cup chopped ham
roux

Chop onion, carrot and celery. Boil with chicken stock in large saucepan or kettle until tender. Add grated cheese and ham. Stir until mixture is thick and cheese is well-blended. Stir in cream, then roux. Stir over low to medium heat 10 to 15 minutes. Recipe yields very thick soup.

Bean soup

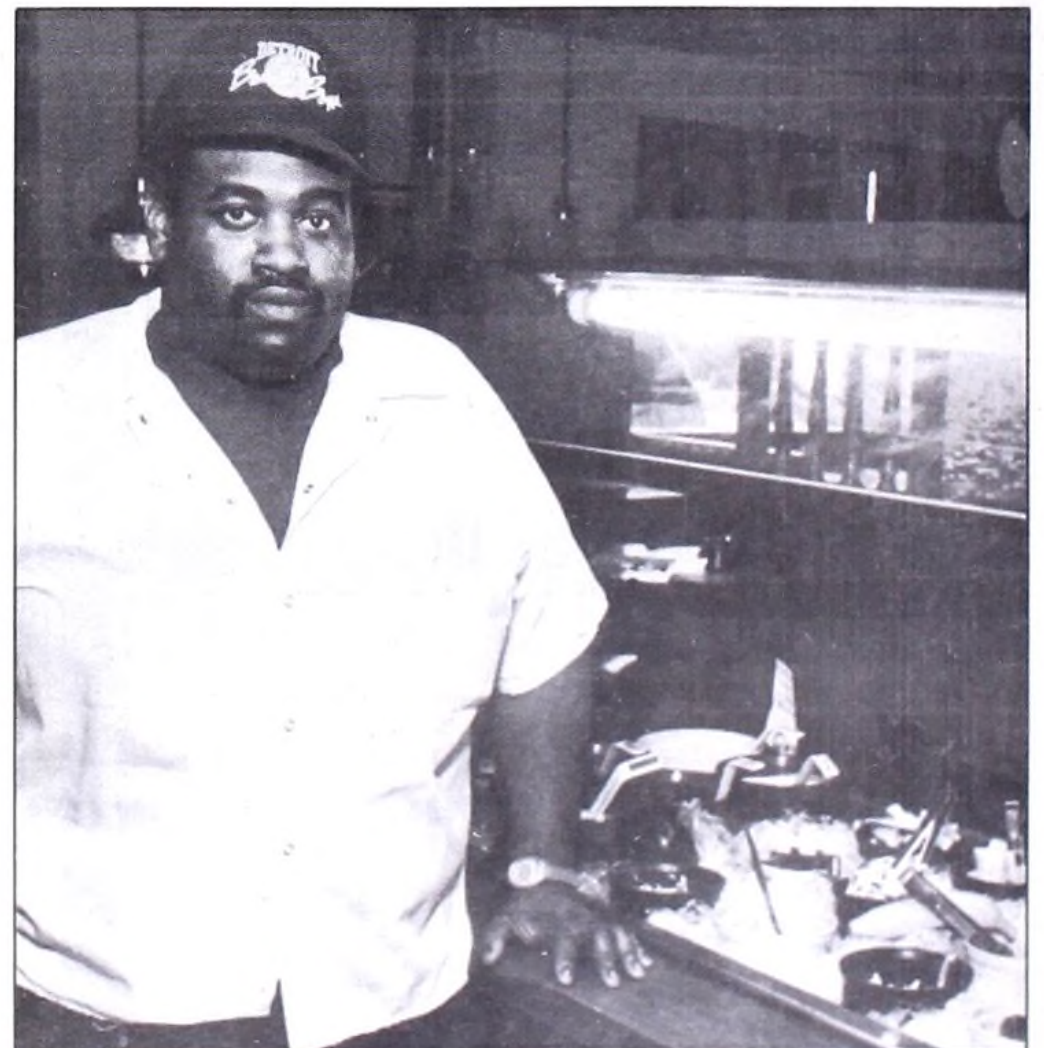

3 carrots
1 large onion
1 bunch celery
2 pork chops (for flavoring)
1/2 cup ham base
4 gallons water
2 1/2 cups dry navy beans

Chop vegetables. Add all ingredients to large saucepan or kettle. Simmer over low heat until beans are tender and flavors are blended. Remove pork chops and serve.

Cream of mushroom soup

1 large onion, chopped
1 bunch celery, chopped
3 pounds fresh mushrooms, washed and drained
1 1/2 quarts chicken stock
2 1/2 gallons cream roux

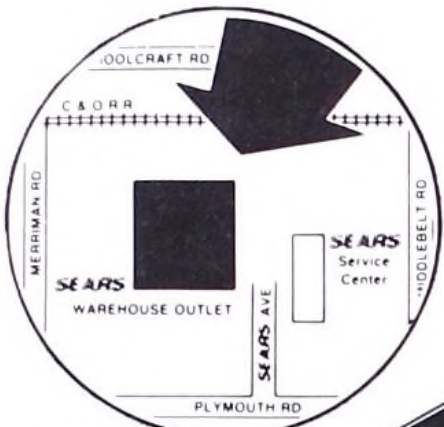

Cook onion and celery with chicken stock until vegetables are tender. Then add mushrooms. In separate pot heat cream. Add to tender vegetable mixture with roux. Simmer 10 minutes over medium heat until thick.

Soup is the favorite winter meal of most people. It is warm and soothing, and when the soup is made from scratch it is even better. Kevin Steel (top) mixes up a batch of his favorite soups everyday at his restaurant. A salad bar at the restaurant (above) offers a wonderful aside to a soup meal. Rock around the bloc

Author discussed impact of rock-and-roll

By JOAN DYER-ZINNER
Belleville City Editor

Is the music of John Lennon helping to topple the political ideology of Vladimir Lenin?

Timothy Ryback, author of Rock Around the Bloc believes rock music has had a profound effect on the current pro-Democracy movement in Eastern Europe. The fears of Eastern Bloc leaders that rock music would encourage freedom of expression and motivate civil disobedience were well-founded, the author believes.

"During the past few weeks, concern that the influence of rock would instill civil disobedience seems to have played out," Ryback said. "As we see the rapid changes in Eastern Europe, we also notice that things are not a lot different there - people wear blue jeans and they have Madonna and Bon Jovi tapes. This, however, is not new. Rock has a 30-year history in the Eastern bloc countries."

Ryback, a former Belleville resident, discussed the influence of rock music on the Eastern Bloc countries at a Feb. 10 program sponsored by the Friends of the Fred C. Fischer Library, Belleville. The author listed both the effects of Western musicians on the Eastern Bloc countries, and the influence that the Eastern musicians have had on our culture.

"Rock Around the Clock" was recorded by Bill Haley and the Comets in the spring of 1954, and Soviet bloc jazz groups began to include it in their repertoires by the end of summer," Ryback said. "In 1958, when Elvis Presley joined the Army and was stationed in West Germany, the East Germans accused the military of using Elvis as a secret weapon."

Ryback noted that when the Beatles came to the U.S. in February, 1964 - launching a frenzy of Beatlemania - the Russian press denounced them a month later. Three months later there were rock riots in Eastern Europe.

The first Eastern European rock bands were imitations of Western groups, followed by emulations of Western music in the 1970s and innovations in the 1980s, Ryback said. At the same time, Eastern musicians were having a profound effect on American music - John Kay, of the group Steppenwolf, originally from the Soviet Bloc, whose recording of Born to be Wild is a rock classic; James Pankow, originally from Bulgaria, who is the trombonist with Chicago; Nina Hagen, from East Germany, a "punk and funk" rocker, and Jan Hammer, a Czechoslovakian, whose compositions for the television series, Miami Vice, redefined television music.

"A 1976 Moscow poll found that Colorado-born Dean Reed (a Soviet bloc rock superstar) was the best known American in the Soviet Union after President Gerald Ford and Henry Kissinger," Ryback said.

Tin Lizzie offers cozy ride to heaven

By FLORENCE MEEKS
ANP Staff Writer

Tin Lizzie part-owner Dick Flavell says his Belleville restaurant is known for quality food, a wide menu selection and reasonable prices.

Another attention grabber – a full-size car parked in the dining room.

The turn-of-the-century vehicle, namesake for the restaurant, was brought in from Omaha, Nebraska, when the restaurant was built approximately 14 years ago. It was parked in the dining room before the last wall was built.

Today, the well-preserved car serves as a salad bar and an endless source of questions, Flavell said.

A native of this area, Flavell purchased Tin Lizzie with partner Jerry Kluck five years ago. The men share 35 years of experience between them.

Flavell said the restaurant is a casual, family dining spot with daily, weekly and monthly specials.

“We are known for the prime rib buffet served Friday and Saturday,” he said.

Listing other daily specials, Flavell mentioned all-you-can-eat crab on Tuesday, and a $4.95 chicken buffet Wednesdays.

The weekly specials, Flavell said, are considered healthy choices, low in salt, fat and cholesterol.

“They don’t necessarily look healthy, but they are.”

These selections are relatively new. The restaurant began offering them approximately four months ago, and the idea quickly caught on, according to Flavell.

Also new is the Tin Lizzie menu, which was revised three months ago. The restaurant management used a computer to choose the new selections, basing their decisions on customer demand.

Flavell said his favorite item is the Pasta Rustica, made with gulf shrimp, scallops, artichoke hearts, a cream sauce and fettuccine.

Additional selections from the large menu are cod filets, king crab, nut-crusted pork, broiled chicken, deep-dish pizza, sandwiches, steak and numerous combination platters including New York strip steak and lobster.

Another Tin Lizzie specialty is the Veal McIntosh, prepared with Michigan apples and apple brandy.

For thorough customer temptation, the restaurant offers a dessert tray with caramel apple cheesecake, chocolate mousse pie, Bailey’s Irish Cream mousse pie, plain cheesecake and raspberry mousse pie. Additional selections include apple dumplings and frozen yogurt (a more legal choice).

“We also have a nice wine selection,” Flavell added.

Most wines are in the low to medium price range.

Tin Lizzie is open from 11 a.m. to 11 p.m. A lounge within the restaurant, Filling Station, is open from 11 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. Monday through Saturday and noon to 1:30 a.m. Sunday.

Rock

Perhaps the most dramatic impact of Western music in the Eastern Bloc was revealed in 1987 when Mikhail and Raisa Gorbachev entertained Yoko Ono in Moscow, and the Communist leader's wife revealed that they were fans of John Lennon and she sang some of his tunes for Yoko.

"I wish John could have been here," Raisa Gorbachev told Lennon's widow. "Can you imagine," Ryback told the audience, "Gorbachev coming home from a hard day at the Kremlin and putting a John Lennon album on the turntable?"

Ryback, a lecturer in history and literature at Harvard University, began his interest in East-West rock music when he taught at the Karl Marx University in East Germany.

"I tried to find some common ground with the students, and I found that they knew more about the Rolling Stones, Beatles and Talking Heads than I," Ryback said. "During that time, I met a Russian rock critic there, and I suggested he write a book about the impact of rock music on the Eastern Bloc. I even suggested the title, Rock Around the Bloc. That was during the pre-glasnost days, and he said he would not be permitted to write that type of book. When I returned home, I decided to write the book myself."

The book was published by Oxford University Press.

Ryback, 35, is a 1972 graduate of Belleville High School, and a 1976 graduate of the University of Michigan. His parents, Ernest and Patricia Ryback, reside in Belleville.

Travel TALK

FROM

Emily's World

TRAVEL, LTD.

THE CHARM OF SCOTLAND

Scotland and its people have a unique heritage filled with charm and grandeur, wherever you travel, lowland or highlands or into the western or northern isles. Its capital, Edinburgh, is one of the world's most fascinating cities, with its huge castle standing sentinel over the city. It was on this site that Iron Age man made his first encampment, with its superb views over the surrounding lochs and valleys.

Edinburgh's Royal Mile was the center of the city's life for centuries. Here walked John Knox, James Boswell, Dr. Johnson, Charles I, Cromwell and Sir Walter Scott. The Royal Mile leads to the palace of Holyroodhouse, once the residence of Mary Queen of Scots, and now the official Scottish residence of her majesty the Queen of Great Britain.

Another famous Scottish city is the ancient royal burgh of St. Andrews. One of the most charming towns in all of Great Britain, with its famous golf course, university, long curving beaches and craggy cliffs crowned with the ruins of castle and cathedral. Special low fares for the summer season are available starting at $654 if purchased prior to March 15.
